

Supporting the transition to secondary school

Starting secondary school is a significant step in a child's life and can bring a mixture of excitement, anticipation and worry for both children and their families. Gemma Howard, a trainer with the Charlie Waller Trust, will be joining us to deliver a practical and supportive session that explores the common challenges young people may face during this transition. The session will provide parents and carers with evidence-informed strategies and practical tools to help their child build confidence, manage worries and feel prepared for the move to secondary school.

- When: Monday 13th July
- Time: 2-3pm
- Where: In person at school

Please email gemma.howard@charliewaller.org to book onto this session. If numbers are below 4, they will not be able to run the session which is why booking is essential.

We really hope you can join us.
