My wife and I moved to Colerne in 2012, soon to be expecting our first child. We now have three, one in her final year at Colerne CE Primary School, with the other two (boy and girl) working their way through. My wife is a TA in the school so there are some strong ties, plus my dad ran a maths department in a secondary school, so education is in the blood.

I am a director in BT looking after our future in the drone industry, which brings a lot of need for creativity, engagement with new technology, working with big and small companies, public and private sector. I also act as an advisor to a couple start ups, and hoping I can use some of this experience to help the school in my role as a governor.

Outside of work I have recently taken up coaching my son's football team and am blessed with friends and family in the village.

I'm extremely grateful for the environment and education which Colerne CE Primary School has provided my children, and excited to play a role in its successful future
